

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A test program ensures the reliability of technical components, especially of internal combustion engines and the parts thereof, by means of a test program. A method is provided which enables an evaluation of the entire test program. If a reliability target cannot be realized with the chosen test program, a modification of the test program is necessary.